- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Jackson was ill so he stayed home from school today. He walked into his brother's bedroom. Carter had cars all over his room. Carter loved putting model cars together and talking about them. Jackson looked also into his twin sisters' shared room. Ella liked wearing pretty clothes. Her side was nice and neat and the wall was decorated with pictures of girls in fancy clothes. Madison liked riding horses. Her side was a mess. A poster of a horse was on the wall and a cowboy boots on the floor.

Finally he went into his little sister's room. Sophie loved ballet. Her ballet shoes and the black outfit she wore were on her dresser. Jackson wondered what his room said about him. His bed was a mess. There was a race track on the floor, some toys, a plastic hat that was part of magic trick sets, and plastic dinosaurs lying on their sides.

Jackson asked his mother why his room shows that he doesn't like anything. She said that it is not true; it shows that he likes to race cars, build things, do magic, and he is even interested in dinosaurs. She explained that he is curious and that is a wonderful thing! At the end, he was convinced and happy that he is different because he is curious and unique.
